Subject: Microsoft settlement

Department of Justice:

I am very distressed by the settlement that has been proposed by your office concerning the Microsoft case. It seems to me that the Bush administration is circumventing copyright law in the favor of Microsoft not by passing laws through congress, but simply by refusing to enforce the law. I find this terribly distressing. President Bush was elected to office and swore an oath that he would uphold the laws of this country. His behavior through your office with regards to the Microsoft case, and his recent involvement with Enron, suggest to me that the Bush administration is more concerned with the welfare of huge corporations than with the proper functioning of the free market and the overall wellbeing of America's citizens.

Sincerely,

Joseph Sutherland
